

Arnprior Aerospace Inc. Introduces New Advisory Board

Arnprior, Ontario, September 9, 2020: Arnprior Aerospace Inc. (AAI) is pleased to introduce its new advisory board formed to provide strategic advice to AAI leadership as it looks to broaden capability and focus on new growth opportunities.

“I am thrilled to announce this new advisory board created to help provide strategic guidance to our company,” said Tom Melvin, President of AAI. “The quality and diversity of experience is tremendous and I look forward to working with this talented group to gain further insight into both the business and political realities affecting our industry.”

AAI is a world class aerospace manufacturer. While COVID-19 and other issues affecting the manufacturing industry have been difficult, AAI is targeting new market sectors for growth.

“In these times we know that protecting our business and our employees is paramount. Narrowing our focus and strategically targeting specific new areas for growth is critical to our success in this endeavor”, added Melvin. “We anticipate the political networks and business leadership this group possesses will provide AAI meaningful opportunities for success.”

The Advisory Board members include:

- Hon. Tony Clement
- Mario Cuconato
- Quito Maggi
- Karen Restoule
- Kim Rudd

About AAI

Headquartered in Arnprior, Ontario, AAI has more than 70 years of experience in the design, production and support of structural components for Aerospace and Defense applications. AAI’s team of highly skilled associates has enabled AAI to become a Canadian leader in aerospace manufacturing.

The Arnprior team shares a vision to provide high value, high quality integrated aerospace and defense solutions to a diverse customer base over the entire product life cycle. AAI continues to expand its customer base and capability offerings.

For Media Inquiries Please Contact:

Steve Hudson Vice President, Business Management & CFO
Steve.Hudson@ArnpriorAerospace.com